Three Good Friends

Good morning, honorable judges, teachers, and friends. Today, I'm going to tell you a story. The title of my story is "Three Good Friends."

Daniel, Jimmy, and Luke are good friends. They attend the same high school and will apply to college next year. They pay attention to their studies because they want to go to a good school. However, even with their hard work, the three of them still get a lot of stress from their schoolwork.

One day, Luke said to Daniel and Jimmy, "I feel down about my grades. Winter vacation is coming. Why don't we go bowling together? Will you come with me?" Daniel said, "That is a great idea. My mother said I cannot play online computer games for a week because I did poorly on my English test."

Then Jimmy said, "Great! My math grades have not gotten better, either. I can't stand the stress I get from math classes any longer. However, I think we should go camping in the mountains." In the end, the three agreed that it was best to go camping rather than go bowling.

Later, after their parents said it was okay to go, the three friends started for the mountains. At the campsite, Luke got some wood to build a fire. Daniel helped Jimmy put up the tent.

The mountain air was really fresh. After playing for a while, the boys went to bed. During the night, Daniel woke Jimmy and Luke up. He said, “Hey! Look at the pretty stars! They are amazing!” Jimmy said, “Yes! Beautiful! Schoolwork has caused us much pain. We should enjoy our lives and our friendship. What do you think about the stars, Luke?”

Luke’s short answer made them jump up in shock. Can you guess what he said? “Where is our tent?”

My friends, this story teaches us that friendship and time to relax are important in life. But we should also remember to be careful and protect our things.

The Taxi Ride

Good morning, honorable judges, teachers, and friends. Today, I'm going to tell you a story. The title of my story is "The Taxi Ride."

If you go for a drive in the country and happen to see a donkey in the road, chances are he'll just stand there. Even if you honk your horn at him, he'll just stare at you as if you're crazy and keep standing right in your way.

If you meet a goat, he always seems to scurry away as fast as he can. And if you see a dog near the road, he will often chase your car. The people of West Africa have a story to explain why these animals behave the way they do.

You see, some time ago, when cars first came to the roads, a donkey, a goat, and a dog took a ride in a taxi. They needed to get home to the villages where they lived.

When they reached the first village, the donkey tapped the driver on the shoulder and said, "This is where I get out. How much do I owe you?"

"Five coins," said the driver.

The donkey paid and got out. The taxi driver drove down the road with the goat and the dog. Soon, the goat tapped the driver on the shoulder and said, "This is my village. How much?" "Five coins," said the driver.

The goat didn't have enough money with him. He jumped out of the taxi and scampered away without paying the driver.

At long last, they came to the dog's village. He tapped the driver on the shoulder and asked, "How much?"

"Five coins," said the driver.

The dog got out of the car, took out his bag of coins, and began to count. Suddenly, the driver grabbed the whole bag of coins and drove off down the road, roaring with laughter.

My friends, this story teaches us the importance of honesty and paying for what we owe. If we are not careful or honest, we may get into trouble.

The Bear and Two Friends

Good morning, honorable judges, teachers, and friends. Today, I'm going to tell you a story. The title of my story is "The Bear and Two Friends."

One day, two friends were walking through the forest. They knew the forest was a dangerous place and that anything could happen. So, they promised to remain close to each other in case of any danger.

All of a sudden, a big bear was approaching them. One of the friends quickly climbed a nearby tree, leaving the other friend behind.

The other friend did not know how to climb and instead followed common sense. He lay down on the ground and remained there, breathless, pretending to be dead.

The bear approached the friend lying on the ground. The animal started to smell his ear before slowly wandering off again because bears never touch those who are dead.

Soon, the friend who hid in the tree came down. He asked his friend, "My dear friend, what secret did the bear whisper to you?" The friend replied, "The bear simply advised me never to believe in a false friend."

After hearing this, the friend who climbed the tree felt very ashamed. He realized that he had not helped his friend when danger came. He said sorry and promised to be a better friend in the future.

The two friends continued walking out of the forest, but the person who lay on the ground remembered the bear's lesson: a true friend stays with you in times of danger.

My friends, this story teaches us that a true friend will always support and stand by you in any situation.
